Attorney General Moody's Week In Review - Aug. 23, 2019

This week, we issued a Consumer Alert about scams targeting victims of the Equifax data breach, the largest credit-reporting data breach in our nation's history—affecting more than half of the adults in the country.

Following a multistate investigation, my office entered into a historic \$600 million settlement over failed security measures that exposed the personal information of millions. Our settlement requires Equifax to pay victims through a claims process.

A website is in place to expedite claims, and already scammers are trying exploit the process. They are sending phishing emails to drive potential victims to a fake claims page. The page asks for Social Security numbers and other personal data.

DON'T FALL FOR THIS SCAM.

To file a claim, go directly to the official claims page: EquifaxBreachSettlement.com. This site will allow you to file online or download a form to file through the mail.

Here are some more tips to help you avoid the Equifax Phishing Scam:

- File now. By going directly to the website and taking action now, you are less susceptible to any future claims scams;

- The claims process is free, so be wary of any site requiring a filing fee; and
- Finally, don't respond to any messages or click on any links directing you to a claims website.

For more tips, see the full Consumer Alert by clicking here. And remember, educating yourself about the latest scams and taking steps to avoid falling victim will help us build a stronger, safer Florida.

Attorney General Hosts Mental Health and Criminal Justice Round Table at the Florida Supreme Court

Attorney General Ashley Moody, in conjunction with Chief Justice Charles T. Canady, hosted part four of the Attorney General's Mental Health and Criminal Justice Round Table Summer Series. The discussion, held at the Florida Supreme Court, focused on the mental health challenges in the Florida courts system. Chief Justice Charles Canady, Chief Judges and numerous other County and Circuit Judges from across the state joined in the discussion, sharing strategies to effectively address mental health issues in order to reduce recidivism, increase public safety and streamline costs.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "I am encouraged by today's round table discussion and hopeful the information and strategies shared will help ensure that we are doing everything possible to effectively address mental health issues, reduce recidivism and increase public safety. I especially want to thank Chief Justice Canady for his participation and passion, and for hosting us at the Florida Supreme Court today." Read More
