Attorney General Moody's Week In Review - Sept. 18, 2020

Exciting announcement this week as college football legend and fellow Florida Gator Tim Tebow agreed to keynote our virtual 2020 Annual Human Trafficking Summit. Tebow is a two-time college football national champion and the 2007 Heisman Trophy winner. He is also a passionate warrior fighting to end human trafficking and free oppressed people across the globe.

I am thrilled to have Tebow keynote this year's record-breaking Human Trafficking Summit. I commend his selfless work through the Tim Tebow Foundation to bring awareness to this horrific crime.

His passion to serve and save children from this abuse is changing lives. I'm excited for our registrants to hear about the great work his foundation is doing and look forward to the launch of our Summit on Oct. 6.

In addition to Tebow's keynote address during the launch of the Summit, this year's program will include more than 15 hours of presentations by speakers from across the country and much more.

The Summit is virtual for the first time in its history. More than 4,000 people from across the country have already registered for this historic event and there is still room for more.
