Attorney General Moody's Week In Review - Feb. 19, 2021

This week, in honor of Black History Month, let's take a moment to remember three women who made a lasting impact on our state and nation. These trailblazing women are members of the Florida Women's Hall of Fame—a signature project of the Florida Commission on the Status of Women—which is housed under my office. During Black History Month, we should all reflect on the experiences and successes of Black Americans whose contributions not only shaped our great state for the better, but also our nation.

The remarkable impacts of the lives of some of Florida's hall-of-fame women should continue to be honored and celebrated.

On special display in our state capitol, you will find plaques celebrating the inspiring lives of women like Zora Neale Hurston, Mary McLeod Bethune and Mildred Wilborn Gildersleeve.

Known for her classic novel, Their Eyes Were Watching God, Zora Neale Hurston's work depicted life in the Black south and secured her place as one of the most influential writers of her time.

Mary McLeod Bethune, for whom Bethune-Cookman University is named, pioneered a space for Black excellence in education when educational resources were limited.

And Mildred Wilborn Gildersleeve, one of the most distinguished medical practitioners in Palm Beach County, helped set the stage for African American women to grow and thrive within the medical field.

These courageous women stood and fought for equality and justice, served as role models and paved the way for countless others to follow in their footsteps.

I am so incredibly proud to highlight these leaders and honor their legacy. They certainly changed the course of history and improved the lives of others. This Black History Month, may their example inspire us all to seek and be part of a better tomorrow—building a Stronger, Safer Florida.

Attorney General Moody and Statewide Prosecutors Secure 30-Year Prison Sentence for Cult Leader Guilty of Murder

Attorney General Ashley Moody's Office of Statewide Prosecution secured a 30-year prison sentence for Anna Young, a 79-year-old cult leader, who pleaded guilty to the late 1980s murder of a toddler. Young confined the toddler in a closet, without food or water, until later found dead by other cult members.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "It is unfathomable to comprehend the horrors that this woman has caused. Thankfully, at 79 years old, she will most likely die in prison and never again be able to harm, torture or kill another human being. I am grateful for the hard work from my Statewide Prosecutors in securing a strong prison sentence for this downright vile criminal." Read More

Stronger, Safer Florida

Attorney

General Ashley Moody, along with attorneys general from 17 other states, is urging President Joseph R. Biden to reverse the decision to end a federal enforcement action targeting convicted sex offenders in the country illegally. The U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's Operation Talon is a nationwide operation that focuses on removing illegally present convicted sex offenders from the United States.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "The reversal of a federal enforcement operation created to prevent the molestation, rape and sex trafficking of women, men and children is extremely concerning to me. As Attorney General, not a day goes by where I am not focused on how to end sex trafficking, especially the rape and torture of children—which, as a mother, disgusts me. It should also disgust President Biden, and that is why I am calling on his administration to immediately reinstate Operation Talon, to protect vulnerable populations from sexual abuse and help us end the disturbing epidemic of human trafficking in this country." CONSUMER ALERT: As Vaccines Outpace COVID-19 Infections, Be Wary of Vaccine-Related Scams

The total number of doses of COVID-19 vaccines administered in Florida is now outpacing the total number of Floridians who have been reported to have contracted the novel virus. As the state starts to turn the corner, Attorney General Ashley Moody is issuing a Consumer Alert to warn Floridians about COVID-19 vaccination scams. With the continuing rollout of vaccines and increasing number of Floridians seeking to secure appointments, scammers have devised multiple methods attempting to take advantage of the highly anticipated vaccination distribution.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "Florida is turning the corner with vaccinations outpacing infections. This is great news, but it would be a mistake to let your guard down now—we need to remain vigilant, not only in preventing the spread of COVID-19, but also in protecting against scams that exploit the pandemic in an effort to steal your money or identity. By becoming familiar with emerging vaccine scams and how to avoid them, we can stop fraudsters and build a Stronger, Safer Florida."
